

CLAIMS FRAUD BY STRATTON INIE

Attorney W. G. Smith Files Stalling Petition in Court in Briggs Case

CHARGES BRANDED ABSURD

Allegations in Accompanying Affidavits Also Characterized as Without Truth

Fraud on the part of the Stratton estate in law suits against it, and exertion of its influence, not only over business men, but over county and court officials and even officials of the school board, are alleged in a petition filed in the district court yesterday by Attorney W. G. Smith of Denver, representing Frank N. Briggs, and who asks that a verdict in favor of the estate in Briggs' suit against it, be set aside and the motion for a new trial granted. Accompanying the petition are numerous affidavits from men who were jurors in the Briggs suit, and others, charging that undue influence was exerted over the jury and other juries by representatives of the estate. It is alleged that Van H. House, secretary of the school board, and a juror in the Briggs case, secured his position by the aid of the Stratton interests.

Attorney D. P. Strickler of the Stratton estate, Superintendent R. M. Lathrop of the street car company, which is owned by the estate, and others emphatically deny the charges. They declare that some of the affidavits have been made by men who were discharged by the street railway company; that other affidavits have been made by men who were discharged by the street railway company; and that there is not the slightest foundation in truth for the charges made by Attorney Smith or any of the affidavits. Attorneys R. L. Hays and C. H. Dwyer of the Briggs estate, who were originally of counsel for Briggs with Smith, have dropped the case and had nothing to do with the petition or affidavits.

History of Case.

The Briggs case was originally that of A. E. Meredith, who demanded $25,000 from the estate for alleged commission due from the late W. S. Stratton for finding a purchaser for the Brown Palace hotel in Denver. After Meredith's death it was continued in court by Frank N. Briggs, administrator of his estate. The claim first was refused by the executors, and then a jury in the county court found for the Stratton estate. On appeal to the district court here, Judge L. W. Cunningham, now a member of the state court of appeals, instructed the jury to find for the estate, but his decision was reversed by the state supreme court, which remanded the case for rehearing. At the next trial in the district court the jury disagreed, and at the final hearing the jury found for the Stratton estate. A motion for a new trial was overruled and the present petition is the latest chapter.

Attorney D. P. Strickler of the Stratton estate will demand a full investigation at once. He said yesterday.

The entire charges do not contain an shred of truth, and anybody who pretends to be a lawyer would file a petition in such manner, and without

GRAND JUNCTION OFFICER BELIEVES PROGRESSIVES WILL SWEEP THE STATE

James H. Rankin, one of the city commissioners of Grand Junction under the commission form of government, together with R. E. Remburg, city engineer, left for Grand Junction last night after a thorough discussion of the paving here. Grand Junction is getting ready to install paving, and as this work falls in Rankin's department, he has been going over the cities of the state to observe how satisfactory the different systems have proved.

Before leaving last night Rankin said:

"I have been making quite a tour of the state in regard to this paving and other business, and I have taken an opportunity to learn the feeling among the people in regard to the political situation. I have eliminated those whom one would commonly term leaders in my investigation, and I have been most agreeably surprised by the attitude of the rank and file of the voters generally. Allegiance to the Progressive Republicans is widespread all over the state, and the election in Grand Junction, Mesa county and the western slope generally is especially good."

"It is my firm belief that at the primaries Mesa county will go five to one for Stewart, Vincent and Griffith. In Grand Junction recently we took a vote of the representative men, and 81 per cent of them were for those candidates. Enthusiasm there is growing all the time, and if the state is as well off as we will expect at the primaries."

PRESIDENT IS OVERRULED BY HOUSE

Passes Wool Tariff Revision Bill Over Taft's Veto by Vote of 174 to 80

REPUBLICANS JOIN DEMOS

Action Creates Wild Scene in Chamber—Clark's Ruling Called Unconstitutional

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—By the narrow margin of five votes, the house today passed the wool tariff revision bill over President Taft's veto. The vote, 174 to 80, was made possible only by the defection of 21 Republicans, who voted with the Democrats.

The announcement of Democratic success created a wild scene in the house, and amid great confusion the Republican leaders protested that Speaker Clark must count as voting 10 members who answered "present" to their names, a ruling which would have defeated the Democratic program by overcoming the five-to-one margin and making impossible the recording of the necessary two-thirds vote. This the speaker declined to do.

Less than an hour after the wool bill had been re-passed in the house the conferees on the sugar tariff bill met and disagreed. They decided to report to both the houses if had been found impossible to reach any compromise between the Underwood and Lodge-Bristow bills. This action is expected to mark the end of sugar tariff consideration in the present session, and the excise tax bill, which was framed to make up revenues that would have been lost by the reduction of the sugar tariffs, probably will remain in conference when congress adjourns.

Will Continue Demands.

While Democratic and Progressive leaders do not believe the wool bill can be passed in that body over the president's veto, they will continue to demand action on the cotton tariff measure.

The vote on the wool bill came as a surprise to the Republican leaders of the house. When they discovered that defection from their ranks was to be expected, it was too late to prevent it. As a result, the following Republicans went over to the Democratic camp and made victory possible for the majority: Alvin New York; Anderson, Davis, Lindbergh, Miller, Stearnson and Stevens, Minnesota; Anthony, Rees and Young, Kansas; Cooper and Morse, Wisconsin; Hargens and Woods, Iowa; Helgeson, North Dakota; Kent, California; Lafayette, Oregon; La Follette and Warburton, Washington; Norris and Sloan, Nebraska.

First Passage Over Veto in House.

Not in the memory of the oldest members of the house has a tariff measure ever been passed over the president's veto by the lower branch of congress. When Speaker Clark announced the vote and declared the bill had passed, the president's veto to the contrary notwithstanding, there was a wild outburst of applause from the Democratic side. The tumult was increased by the declaration of half a dozen Democrats that the ruling was unconstitutional.

When a semblance of order was restored, Representative Gardner of Massachusetts insisted that the constitution provided that a two-thirds vote of the house was necessary and that its members voting "present" should be counted for they had recorded their presence. Representative

WOMEN CONTRIBUTE TO PROGRESSIVES

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Leaders at the Chicago headquarters of the Progressive party today said the support given their cause by women was taking substantial form. Scores of letters have been received in the last few days from women extending well wishes to the Progressives, and in nearly every case containing campaign contributions ranging from $1 to $50.

"A great part of the expense of the Illinois state campaign will be borne by the contributions of women," said State Senator Funk, Progressive candidate for governor.

The Progressive managers plan to place at least two women on their finance committee, as a result of the unsolicited contributions already received, and expect that the activity of Miss Jane Addams and other suffrage leaders will result in material support in handling the campaign.

Mrs. John Bass will return to Chicago from New York tomorrow and, with Mrs. Rayburn Robbins, will open the women's bureau at the new Progressive headquarters.

Members of the executive committee, which will direct the Republican campaign, gathered in Chicago tonight for a meeting tomorrow.

T. A. Marlow of Montana has been placed on the Republican executive committee in place of Alfred T. Rogers of Wisconsin, who said some time ago that he would not have time to

PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICANS ISSUE CLEAR-CUT AND RINGING STATEMENT

It has become necessary that we Progressive Republicans who are making the fight for clean government within the party, state unmistakably our position and the reasons therefor.

Our campaign has culminated in a group of candidates which will appear in the September 10 primaries, and they offer to the Progressive Republicans of the state a clear choice between Progressive Republican candidates and those put up by the openly and avowedly reactionary group named in the state assembly.

After 10 years' fighting for a direct primary law, we are for the first time to use it, and through this law the people can select their candidates on their record of fitness and character. No Republican is in doubt as to where we stand; we have openly avowed our platform; we have made public our views and position by wide campaigning on the stump and through the newspapers. We are fighting the old party methods and the dishonest and traitorous old-time party managers; we are putting up to the people the straight issue of whether the mass of the Republican party is at heart sound and whether it is fit to survive as an agency in the government of the state.

We believe the people of Colorado will respond at the primaries, and we know of no other way so direct and conclusive for attaining an organization for constructive and progressive legislation.

We stand squarely for Theodore Roosevelt, and have based our campaign upon his statement in Orchestra hall, Chicago, June 22, 1912, worded as follows:

"Gentlemen: I thank you for your nomination, and in you I recognize the lawfully elected delegates to the Republican convention who represent the overwhelming majority of the voters who took part in the Republican primaries prior to the convention and who represent the wish of the majority of the lawfully elected members of the convention. I accept the nomination subject to but one condition."

The condition being that the delegates return home, sound the home sentiment and when reassembled, if they should decide they would have another leader than Mr. Roosevelt, they would be free to select him.

Accepting this statement of Mr. Roosevelt's position, a large majority of the progressive leaders of the state who have steadily been in the forefront in the progressive battle decided to challenge the party reactionaries at the September primaries and to rest our case with the people, after an open discussion of men and measures taken to every community in the state.

We regard Colonel Roosevelt's telegram, published today, as based on a misunderstanding of conditions, and in its effect eminently unfair to many who have made and are making the fight for him in Colorado, but it will in no wise alter our determination to support him.

This fight has been made in the sight of all men and will be vigorously continued until the 10th of September—in contrast to the course of our adversaries within the party, who have not dared to announce their position on any matter of public interest and are stalling behind old-time managers whose records and acts for years are the grounds for our protest and our appeal.

We offer ourselves as candidates to the people in the September primaries.

This is the people's fight. We expect to win. We are going to smash the machine.

Indians to Camp at Monument Park During Shan Kive

Monument park will be the scene of the big Indian encampment during the Shan Kive and carnival. That was decided yesterday afternoon at a meeting between the members of the park board and Attorney R. L. Holland, chairman of the Indian committee. The camp will be set up on the athletic field just south of the lake. The Indians will bring their own tepees, blankets and other paraphernalia, and will build a small village.

It is proposed to have that portion of the park filled with electric lights, so that the camp may be visited at night as well as day. The carnival committee will be permitted to drive teams in to get the equipment laid out, but other vehicles will be kept out under park rulings. It will not injure the park in the least, as the athletic field, which contains several acres, is unused. In fact, the camp will result in drawing to the prettiest little park in the western part of the United States, hundreds of Colorado Springs people who have never been near it. By the end of the month it will be gorgeous with the red flowers that come in the autumn.

Word came from Superintendent Werner at Ignacio that he is arranging to bring 85 Utes, and that has made Holland and the committee sit up and take notice. The guests of the carnival will have to be fed, even if the city pound-wagon has to make a roundup every day. Starting out to get a handful of Utes, the committee finally invited 80 adults. Then there was added 12 young men for the ball team, and now Mr. Werner writes that there will be 20 papagoes.

Biggest Band Seen Here.

Very few people in Colorado Springs ever saw such a bunch of Indians as this will be, unless they have been to some reservation at a time when the natives were gathered for some special purpose. Buffalo Bill never carried any such band as that. Mr. Werner says that Ignacio, Chipeta, Buckskin Charlie and the older people are much pleased to have a part in marking the old Ute trail. He says they may participate in the various dances at Maniton and the Garden of the Gods and go in the various parades, but that they can attend the masquerade and cowboy ball only under restrictions.

One thing that must be carefully guarded, particularly as the big bunch of Indians will be located in the heart of the city, is that whisky is not sold or given them. The sale or donation of liquor to an Indian is a penitentiary offense, and the United States district attorneys prosecute it strictly.

The Indians will leave Ignacio Sunday, the 25th, and arrive here Monday morning at 4 o'clock. They will be met and the stuff taken to Monument park camp to be set up for breakfast. A contract has been made with Charles R. Robinson, an experienced negro cook, who knows the Indians and talks their language, to feed them at so much a meal. W. S. Reynolds has been named to have charge of the Indians for the committee, to see that they are ready and in their places when wanted for any public appearance.

FLOWER SHOW OPENS AT STRATTON PARK

Prettiest Flowers and Sweetest Babies on Exhibition Beginning at 2 p. m.

The prettiest flowers, the best vegetables, the most attractive dolls and the sweetest babies will all be on exhibition at the annual flower, doll and baby show which begins at Stratton park pavilion this afternoon at 2 o'clock under the auspices of the El Paso County Horticultural society. The exhibition will close Friday evening.

The vegetables to be exhibited, including every reasonable variety that can be grown in the Pikes Peak region, are said to be unusually fine this year as are the floral displays.

For the sweetest baby and for dolls of all sorts, valuable prizes are offered. In addition to the regular prizes, additional awards will be made to each child who has a doll exhibited in the doll show. One of the attractive features in the doll show will be a miniature city arranged by the local W. C. T. U.

As usual, dahlias and sweet peas will be prominent among the floral displays. Because of the heavy rains, these flowers are especially fine and the exhibits will excel any that have ever been seen here.

The floral program for this afternoon will include several plans and violin selections and this evening at 8 o'clock Pink's orchestra will play.

U. S. Reinforces Garrison Where Mexicans Crossed

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 13.—Reports of continued shelling across the border at Columbus, N. M., where a detachment of the Third cavalry is stationed, have been received by General E. Z. Steever, in command at Fort Bliss. Columbus is opposite Palomas, Mex., held by a rebel garrison and was the scene yesterday of a skirmish between United States soldiers and rebel ammunition smugglers in which an American soldier was seriously wounded. Colonel Steever said tonight that the shelling from the Mexican side early today lacked consequence as no one was injured and that there was no proof of maintenance. The soldier wounded yesterday and brought to the military hospital here is expected to recover despite a mushroom bullet which passed through his body.

Thirty men of troop D, Third cavalry, were rushed by train to Columbus tonight to reinforce the small garrison there. It was said that many threats had been made by the rebels at Palomas on account of the arrest of a smuggler who had shot an American soldier.

Mormons' Plans Unsettled.

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 13.—The advance of the federal troops into the Mormon colonies of the Cases Grandes district is watched with more than passing interest by the American refugees who left their homes on being disarmed by the rebels. Officials of the colonies conferring here with A. W. Ivins, an apostle of the Mormon church from Salt Lake City, Utah, has practically decided not to attempt to present to repopulate the deserted colonies. But the reclaiming of the Cases Grandes district by the federals doubtless will cause a change in the plans, and a meeting has been called for tomorrow morning to decide definitely on the matter.

It is stated that 2,000 souls in El Paso and at the refugee camp at Hachita, N. M., are awaiting the decision of the colonial officials before proceeding to new homes in Arizona, Colorado and Utah. It was planned to send at least the women and children away from the border as soon as the $100,000 appropriation of congress was available. But tonight it was said by Apostle Ivins that the change in situation to the south might cause a decision at the conference today to send back the men members of the colonies to protect the property until such time as the returning of the women and children could be made in safety.

BANKERS AID WILL CONTINUE N. Y. POLICE PROBE WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN

Virtual Command to All Banks to Furnish Records of Becker's Deposits

NEW EVIDENCE TO LIGHT

Accused Officer, on Salary of $2,250 a Year, Has Holdings Valued at $200,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Powerful banking interests, acting through the New York clearing house committee, came to the aid of District Attorney Whitman today, in his efforts to break the alleged corrupt alliance between the police and the gambling fraternity.

A virtual command was given to all banks in the clearing house to furnish the district attorney with a record of deposits they may have received from any of the high police officials whom the district attorney suspects of having been collectors of blackmail from disreputable elements.

A result, records showing that within the last eight months Police Lieutenant Becker, charged with the murder of Herman Rosenthal and accused of gambling graft, has made deposits in four banks of $58,815 in his own name or that of his wife, were placed in the hands of the prosecutor. These deposits, the records show, first were made in November, 1911, shortly after Becker became head of the "strong arm" squad of gamblers' raiders, and continued all during the time that Jack Rose says he was collecting graft for Becker. The district attorney has been promised records of Becker's deposits in four other banks, which did not have time to go over their accounts today, and he discovered that Becker has an amount of stocks, bonds and other securities locked up in security deposits.

That the total value of the police lieutenant's holdings will be found to approximate $200,000, would be no surprise to the district attorney. Becker's salary as a police lieutenant was $2,250 a year.

The district attorney has received information that Becker may have put money in several banks outside the city, and if these are located, New York bankers have promised to use their influence to secure the records for Mr. Whitman.

Stewart, Vincent, Griffith and Others to Resume Triumphant Tour Against Machine

MONDAY NIGHT AT TRINIDAD

Progressive Republicans Give Out Statement of Position. Strong Men on Ticket

Beginning Monday evening, August 19, with a big meeting at Trinidad at 8 p. m., Philip B. Stewart, Republican candidate for governor, Merle D. Vincent, Republican candidate for United States senator, Benjamin E. Griffith, Republican candidate for attorney general, and others, will continue the whirlwind campaign which brought such excellent results in the Arkansas valley and in northern Colorado.

The state ticket as now made up by what are known as the Stewart followers is composed of Merle D. Vincent of Poudre for United States senator for long term; Clarence P. Dodge of Colorado Springs and J. J. Stark of Denver as the two candidates for congressman-at-large; R. H. Reese of Denver for justice of the supreme court; A. Van Buskirk of Rocky Ford for commissioner from the Second district; Philip B. Stewart of Colorado Springs for governor; Dr. W. G. Davenport of Trinidad for lieutenant governor; Benjamin E. Griffith of Grand Junction for attorney general; Ernest C. Bacon of Ouray for secretary of state; O. D. Cass of Denver for state treasurer; Arthur P. Malcom of Denver for state auditor; and Dr. O. J. Pfeiffer of Denver and B. F. Smith of Delta as regents of the State university.

The names of these candidates will appear on the Republican primary ballot at the statewide primaries to be held Tuesday, September 10. Every candidate on this ticket ignored the state assembly, all giving as their reasons therefor that it was dominated by machine influence. Each candidate filed separately by petition with the secretary of state.

Against Machine.

Their nomination in the state is not being made against the Republican party or against reasonable party organization, but against machine leadership in the party. A statement recently issued by these candidates contains the following:

"Our names as candidates for state office will appear upon the Republican primary ballot to be voted on at the statewide primaries to be held Tuesday, September 10. We are not assembly candidates, because our fight has been waged against machine domination in the party. Our reasons for taking the position we have are as follows:

"First—The primary law gives the right as Republicans to have our candidates filed by petition.

"Second—The primary law gives Republican electors the right to sign these petitions, to have our names placed upon the Republican primary ballot.

"Third—Under the provisions of these primary laws, any Republican candidate for office can ignore the assembly, file by petition, and take the cause he represents directly to the voters at the primaries.

WEALTHY FARMERS COMING THIS FALL

Influx of Money Expected as Soon as Harvesting Over. Amazing Crop Record

Prosperity of a sort hitherto unknown here will soon strike Colorado Springs, according to Frank H. Faus, commercial agent for the Rock Island lines in this city.

"Many of the tourists season in Colorado Springs and the number of people it should bring to the Pikes Peak region is limited to what I have heard others say," said Mr. Faus last night, "so when I say that this season does not seem to be so good as previous ones, I am merely quoting others. However, if it isn't so good and if the merchants are pessimistic now, they will soon be the most enthusiastic optimists in the country."

"What Colorado Springs has lost by the lack of tourists this year will be more than made up by the money spent by people coming in from all parts of eastern Colorado, even to the Kansas line, after they have harvested their crops. This may seem strange to business men here, for I understand that such a condition has never before existed, but merchants in small towns throughout eastern Colorado are going to come to Colorado Springs this year to lay in their stocks. I have talked to scores of men in this section of the state, and they all say they intend to do their buying here, even men from Burlington, which is on the Kansas line."

More Money Than Ever Before.

"There will be more money in the eastern part of the state this year than ever before. The crops are all bumper crops. I never saw such a condition. Elevators are being constructed at almost every little town on our line, to handle the small grains, and the Rock Island will have to handle this great traffic. The wheat crop alone will elicit tax to its capacity. This condition prevails not only in eastern Colorado, but all through the state. I have been making a study of the crops this year, and I believe I am in a position to know. According to the experts of the United States department of agriculture, whose estimates are made public in the monthly Crop Reporter, the products of Colorado farms this year will bring to the growers $112,842,536. Last year the same products gave to the farmers of the state only $89,820,000, although prices were much higher than at present."

The return of $112,842,536 to those engaged in agricultural pursuits in the state will be equivalent to a distribution of more than $135 to every person in Colorado, while the average for the entire country will be less than $90.

Enormous Increase.

"Crop conditions in Colorado this year have been so much better than in 1911 that 10 crops, quantitatively estimated by the government, which last year were worth $29,174,844 to the farmers of the state, this year will yield at least $55,921,841, an increase of more than 40 per cent. Yields per acre of some crops will break all Colorado records, thereby setting new records for the United States. "The 1912 corn crop in this state is 50 per cent greater than the one of 1911. The rice crop is more than double that of last year. Colorado farmers will receive from potatoes this year, $8,000,000 against $3,000,000 last year. There is an increase of 15 per cent in the value of the fruit-crop and live stock, while the number marketed and to be marketed shows little increase, has been bringing much higher prices than in 1911."

PROSECUTION HAS FAILED TO CONNECT DARROW WITH CORRUPTION, SAYS LAWYER

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—Summing up, today, the evidence adduced by the state against Clarence S. Darrow, former attorney of the convicted dynamiters, John J. and James B. McNamara, who is on trial for alleged jury bribing, Earl Rogers, chief counsel for the defendant, told the jury that the prosecution had failed to connect Darrow with the corruption of juror George N. Lockwood, through the instrumentality of Bert H. Franklin, the former detective, who confessed having passed the bribe money.

The state had proved, Rogers asserted, "only" that Franklin had been introduced as a spy into the ranks of the McNamara defense, and that any one of 50,000 other persons interested in the great struggle between capital and labor would have greater interest and a more impelling motive than Darrow in bribing a juror to acquit the McNamaras. He asserted the state had not traced what he supposed to be bribe money farther than Olathe, Mo., a labor leader of San Francisco, and that Darrow had been named directly in connection with the alleged bribing of Lockwood only by two detectives—Franklin and John R. Harrington of Chicago, whom he described as the "most precious pair of soundrels that ever smirched their souls to betray a friend."

Taunts Prosecution.

He also taunted the prosecution for failing to examine Twitmore after he had been called as a witness, and asked that Harrington had been hired by Detective Foster of the National Erectors' association to "get" Darrow.

Before Rogers opened his argument, large squares of white duck were stretched on frames in the court room, displaying the names of the 33 witnesses introduced by the state, grouped under each of the many angles and issues developed during the trial.

"These constitute a diagram of this whole case," said Rogers, and, referring to a group labeled "main issue," he pointed out to the jury that only Franklin, Harrington and Samuel Twitmore, the chief detective for the district attorney's office, had mentioned Darrow in any relation to the alleged corruption of Lockwood.

Rogers is scheduled to complete his argument tomorrow, and Darrow will close his own defense.

Appeal Opens Arguments.

In opening arguments for the defense, today, Attorney Horace H. Appel declared that the United States prosecuting officials in the case against the county district attorney, introduced Bert H. Franklin, the confessed briber, as a spy in the camp of the defense.

Tears, epithets, objections and bitter exhortations punctuated the impassioned address of Appel to the jury, and at one climax he shook his fist in the face of Assistant District Attorney Joseph Ford, who opened for the state yesterday, and shouted "liar," and "base falsified." Appel asserted that the state's case against Darrow rested on the word of Franklin, who was not only a detective but a confessed criminal.

"And the corroborated testimony of detectives and criminals, you know, is worthless," he added.

Appel's attack on Ford was occasioned by the latter's statement yesterday that not only were criminal tactics employed in the McNamara defense but that the present case was reeking with corruption.

Appel told the jury that Franklin was introduced to Darrow by letter from United States District Attorney A. L. McCormick, and that thereafter as a spy, a trapper he drew money from Darrow, and deliberately began the attempt to bribe jurors, not as a servant of the McNamara, or their chief attorney now on trial, but in the interest of the county district attorney.

OROZCO'S SUBORDINATES IGNORING CHIEF AND ARE OPERATING INDEPENDENTLY

JUAREZ, Mex., Aug. 13.—His forces scattered over a radius of many hundreds of miles, Gen. Pascual Orozco with a scant 700 rebels at his command awaits here the advance of a federal army, aggregating more than 5,000 men. Lopez Salazar, a rebel general, subordinate to Orozco, appears to have ignored commands to bring his forces to Juarez. An officer of Salazar's command arrived here today to report that his leader has declared himself operating independently, angered by the reports of peace overtures between Orozco and the federal government. "The federal army led by General Roberto, Sanchez and Teller, both of the Casas Grandes district, reclaiming the Mormon colonies deserted by American residents disarmed by the rebels. Salazar, who originally commanded an army of more than 1,000 rebels, has moved west into the mountains headed for Sonora, and it is said to lead no more than 400 men. He is said to be short of ammunition. Farther to the west is operating Antonio Rojas, the rebel leader whose forces met the federals in an engagement yesterday at Ladura. Senora. Both Salazar and Rojas, Orozco's principal chiefs, evidently are operating independently.

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 13.—In reply to repeated appeals for peace on the part of Rev. H. Allen Tupper, honorably president of the International Peace Forum, Gen. Pascual Orozco today presented the American gergymen with a lengthy document, duly signed and countersigned. Armed with this paper Dr. Tupper, who is pastor of the Calvary Baptist church of Brooklyn, New York, returned to the American side from Juarez and is having the statement translated for the use of the society of which President Taft is the head. Dr. Tupper said that his second talk with the rebel commander-in-chief was highly satisfactory, although peace in Mexico seems to depend on the rebels' relations with the federal government. Orozco merely set forth his attitude, reiterating his demand that only may peace be secured through the resignation of President Madero and his cabinet.

Careful investigation disclosed no excuse for the rumors that official negotiations for peace have been under way since the visit here last week of Rafael Hernandez, minister of foreign affairs of Madero's cabinet. It is admitted that the attempted conference between Hernandez and Orozco was made unofficially through persons who promised both sides conditions to which neither side had agreed. In this way both Orozco and Hernandez believed the other had retracted propositions neither had made.

CLAIMS FRAUD

(Continued From Page One.) foundation, as in this case. Some of the most sensational affidavits upon which charges of crookedness are based have been made by men who were discharged by the street railway company. One man in particular was discharged because of his record while with the company. For one thing, he held out a valuable diamond, which he had found in his car, for a reward. Under the company rules he should have turned in the diamond to the office at once.

Claim Is Absurd.

"The chief claim that the board of education is controlled by the Stratton estate is too absurd to provoke more than a laugh. C. H. Dudley, president of the school board, was one of the attorneys who represented Briggs, and who worked side by side with Smith in the trial.

"In order to get rid of the case, we offered to pay all the costs and to give Briggs something like $1,500 a short time before the last trial. Does that look as if we had everything 'fixed'?"

"I suppose 'Tramway Bill' Smith is trying to get the case removed to Denver. This reminds me that a few years ago, in some case against the estate, a motion for a change of venue was filed, alleging that the sentiment of El Paso county residents was so strong in favor of the estate that one could not get a fair trial here. Prominent business men who signed affidavits for me against the request, said that sentiment was the other way."

Superintendent Lathrop also says that there is no truth in the charges of the petition or the affidavits. The allegations of influence over the school board he brands as ridiculous, and on a par with the other charges. The matter will be handled fully in the reply of the Stratton attorneys, says Lathrop, who gave this as his reason for not going into detailed denial of the allegations. Other officials and representatives of the estate and street railway company united in emphatic denial of the charges, which are characterized as "absolutely without foundation."

Attorney Smith asks the court to subpoena Dr. D. H. Rice, one of the Stratton trustees; Superintendent B. M. Lathrop of the street railway company; Assistant Superintendent J. E. Burns; Claim Agent John Henry, Mrs. Wilkins, alleged to be a company detective; together with all the jurors who tried the case, and "all officers and agents of said company," to appear in the district court so that the charges may be fully investigated.

The Petition.

The petition in part is as follows: "This plaintiff further represents to the court that on the affidavit of George A. Pace, the affidavit of H. W. Boyle and others herewith submitted, that it is impossible to secure, without a very stringent and careful consideration by the court, a fair and impartial trial in El Paso county, Colorado, against the Stratton estate or its interests because of the fact that a conspiracy exists between a number of county officials and parties who control and manage said estate and its interests so that professional jurors who are known to be under obligations to said estate, rotate from one jury to another, and that those representing the estate in all ways securing some of such jurors to sit upon juries and to influence verdicts contrary to the law and the evidence in the case; that such action was taken deliberately by the defendants through their agents and attorneys for the purpose of thwarting justice in El Paso county, and this plaintiff prays the court that such conspiracy in this cause may not avail against the cause of justice.

This plaintiff also represents by the affidavits of H. H. Rice, March Gardner, F. N. Harner, W. G. Pennington, J. H. Campbell, B. H. Long, B. S. Dixon, J. D. Griffith, Alex. Green, A. F. Shields and Philip Bernhardt, herewith presented to the court, that the conspiracy existing in El Paso county in connection with the trials of all causes against the Stratton estate and its many important interests practically precludes securing justice in any action against the estate and its agents or other interests, and it is said affidavits mentioned in this paragraph will be found evidence of corruption and crookedness in the handling of witnesses and jurors in different cases together with very serious questions as to the conduct of three jurors in the trial of this cause in December, 1910.

Some of the attached affidavits directly state that witnesses and jurors have been bought and witnesses bribed to testify falsely by the agents of the Stratton estate or the street car company.

Some of the Affidavits

O. L. Burch, one of the jurors in the case during its trial in the district court, makes affidavit that the "matter was hurried through as fast as possible" in the jury room, "and no consideration whatever was given to the evidence or instructions, or matters brought out at the trial," and he further declares that the "verdict rendered in this case was entirely unjust and unwarranted and to this day he regrets the action of the jury, although he was one of the jurors bringing in said verdict in July, 1911."

He says that Van E. House, secretary of the school board, and foreman of the jury, was very active in behalf of the Stratton side of the case. He goes on to say that he has heard of many instances where pressure has been brought to bear upon officials, business men, employees and even jurors, to influence action in favor of the "business interests of the Stratton estate."

He alleges specific instances where, in his claims to have heard that witnesses in other cases were offered money to leave town or to sign a statement for the street car company. Harvey Gillingham, constable of Justice Gowdy's court, swears that Fred Herberg, a Manitou tailor, "works schemes for these (Stratton) interests to get on the jury for them," and cites alleged cases.

What Page Claims.

George A. Page, a former street car conductor, says that C. F. Miles, W. P. Benedict, Mrs. W. C. Grafton and Van E. House used car passes as did the sheriff, many of his deputies and many county officials and court officials, while he was conductor, and that Miles, Benedict, Van House and Grafton, husband of Mrs. Grafton, were on the Briggs jury. He further declares that from conversations he has overheard, the Stratton car line "has a great system there regarding street-

Other affidavits along the same line are given by H. W. Boyle, Calvin Marshall, a juror in the Briggs case, who said that the verdict was reached without balloting and without reading instructions or evidence. B. M. Harner, H. E. Hess and many others. Hess says that L. A. Fox, J. D. Gardner, Fred Herberg and F. A. Haden, who served on two more juries, were determined from the first to favor the Stratton estate. He says: "He has 'traced the matter out,' so as to determine the matter."

PRESIDENT IS OVERRULED

"Those 10 members who voted 'present,'" the speaker ruled, after a long examination of present only to recognize as being present only to constitute a quorum. The constitution as interpreted in the past clearly provides that all decisions must rest on a yes and nay vote."

Speaker Clark Stands Firm.

Representative Fitzgerald of New York, Democrat, supported Mr. Olmsted and Mr. Gardner in their contentions, while Minority Leader Mann supported the speaker. The speaker when the debate broke out with renewed vigor quickly put a damper on it.

"You may talk all you want," he said, but the chair has no intention now or later of changing its ruling. Shortly before the vote was taken, Minority Leader Mann appealed to his followers to stand by the Republican party and protective tariff principles. He urged upon them the necessity of remaining with the minority, in order to safeguard a great American industry, which he said would be destroyed under the terms of the Democratic bill.

Mr. Underwood, who closed the debate, exhorted wavering Republicans to join with the Democrats in passing the bill over the veto of the president, who believed he could dam back the demands of the American people with veto messages.

THORPE'S ATTORNEYS ASK FOR WRIT HABEAS CORPUS

That the indefinite charges against Harvey W. Thorpe are without foundation, and that he is held illegally, are the grounds on which his attorneys, W. D. Lombard and W. N. Ruby, have their demand for his release on a writ of habeas corpus, filed in the district court yesterday. The charges against Thorpe arise out of transactions relating to a new threshing machine, and his attorneys claim that the officer who came here for him was merely a collector for the threshing machine company, and was without the necessary papers.

In connection with the case, Ruby yesterday filed in the county court a replevin suit against George G. Birdsell, county sheriff; Charles Birdsell, deputy sheriff, and Harvey W. Thorpe, for property to the amount of $591.69, which was transferred to him by Thorpe after his arrest, but which Birdsell now holds.

In addition to climbing the mountain by the Cog road, Mr. Cherry has made the trip from Cripple Creek, from Cascade, from Bear Creek and a number of other starting points.

IN DOUBT AS TO PROPER PLACE TO FILE PETITIONS

Whether the legislative candidates in El Paso county filed their petitions or assembly designation acceptances with the county clerk or with the secretary of state has been causing quite a discussion, and it is possible that the question may be brought up in the courts. Most of the candidates have filed with county clerk Sheldon, a few with Secretary of State Pearson, and one—Mark Skinner, Democrat—with both.

The attorneys who have been studying the situation are not agreed in their decisions; some say petitions should be filed with the county clerk and others declare that the secretary of state is the proper official. The law covering this point reads as follows:

"Every such petition shall, in case of a candidate for any national state or district office greater than a county, be filed in the office of the secretary of state."

El Paso county alone constitutes a legislative district, and the question is whether this legislative district is greater than this county.

County Clerk Sheldon states that he is not certain on the point, and it is said that Secretary of State Pearson does not know. In the opinion of many attorneys, a district is greater than a county, as a political unit, and for this reason the petitions should have been filed with the secretary of state, they say.

County Clerk Sheldon will put on the ballot all candidates who have filed in his office and it is probable that the matter will not be definitely decided unless some candidate is ruled off the ballot and brings the case up in court.

The following legislative candidates have filed with the county clerk:

Republican—Representative—Burke Potter, S. J. Dunbar, F. F. Wolff, Senator—John R. Robinson
Democratic—Representative—John McCartney, Jenny Shelly Boyd, J. T. Kavanaugh, J. K. Radley, E. T. Ford, Senator—M. A. Skinner (also with secretary of state.)

The following Republicans have filed with the secretary of state: Representative—Warren M. Persons, Thomas Thomas and Curt Goerke, Senator—W. C. Robinson.

STOCKS ARE STRONG

Yesterday's trading on the Mining Exchange was lively and was characterized by a general upward movement in prices. Kettle Lane, a prospect, jumped to three cents, more than double the mark of a few weeks ago. Isabella went up 1/2 cent, marking 16 1/2 cents, while Elkton varied between 71 and 72. El Paso sold at $1.19 1/2, but probably will go higher, for telegrams from the east indicate increased interest there in that stock.

When He Finds a "Bomb"

Colorado Springs, steadily advancing toward metropolitanism, had a good bomb scare for awhile last night. Along about 8:30 o'clock John S. Hunter, proprietor of the Superior Lumber and Cleaning company, 129 North Tejon street, discovered an old "granite-iron" coffee pot in the front door sill of his shop. It was about eight inches high, and maybe five inches broad at the bottom, but Hunter didn't go near it. On the contrary, he backed carefully away from it and reached for the telephone book, for there floated before his mind images of years in peace with an audience of Russians in long boards and business dancing gleefully about. By the time he discovered the police station in his remembered the birth dates and the dying words of every martyred president, for, you should know, the coffee pot was filled with something, the lid was gone and in its place a rag was tied over the top of the pot.

In response to a frantic telephone message an officer ran all the way from the police station to Hunter's store, total distance two blocks by any one of three routes. The coffee pot still remained on the door sill in solitary grandeur. The officer walked cautiously around it three times and then more cautiously approached, touched it lightly, but nothing happened. Finally he lifted the pot and pulled out its contents. The inside

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 13. Freight congestion and a shortage of cars are being predicted by railroad men of the central west. The chairman of the Association of Western Railways has issued an appeal to industrial traffic managers and commercial organizations to aid in modifying the congestion.

The appeal asks that all shippers, when they can, send their freight in the next few weeks before the railroads are straggling under the crop movement.

It is pointed out by railroad men that the shortage of cars on July 1, 1911, was 14,972 and that the shortage on October 25 to 26, 1912, was 65,922. If the shortage is as great as last year there will be a shortage, approximately of seven cars by the end of October.

Ascatco Widely Used, Affords Greatest Relief—Climatic Change Unnecessary.

MOST EFFECTIVE REMEDY

What is the best hay fever treatment? This is an absorbing question to thousands of hay fever sufferers just now, when the ragweed blows and the pollen is heavy in the air. Those who have tried Ascatco, the famous remedy for respiratory diseases, and who have been entirely freed from hay fever in past seasons, say that nothing is so indisputably effective and dependable. Ascatco is perfectly adapted to this purpose, and keeps the nasal passages permeable, free breathing, and soothes the nose away with the necessity for climatic change, or extreme use of remedies in any locality, and without interruption to daily duties. The usual method is to begin taking Ascatco as early in the season as possible, continuing until the cure is obtained. It can now be obtained in two sizes, at 50 cents and $2, at Robinson Drug Co., Red Cross Pharmacy. Persons who have never used Ascatco may obtain a trial treatment free by writing to the Ascatco Laboratories, West 25th Street, New York City.

THE VETO OF THE WOOL BILL

IN HIS Wimona speech President Taft called the tariff schedule on wools and woolens "indefensible."

A year ago Mr. Taft vetoed the La Follette bill reducing the duties on wool and woolens. His defense was, "The tariff board has not reported and, anyway, the Democrats played politics."

The tariff board made its report on wool last December. Last week a bill was sent to the White house reducing the tariff rates on raw wool to 29 per cent ad valorem and on cloths to 49 per cent. It is identical with that sent in a year ago. The President promptly vetoed the measure.

Mr. Taft is very resourceful. He has again found a defense for the indefensible. He gives as a reason for his veto that the rates are not high enough "to maintain a degree of protection necessary to offset the differences in cost of production here and abroad."

According to the tariff board the cost of production of wool varies in different sections of the country from zero to 19 cents a pound. The first figure is for sections where sheep are raised profitably for the meat produced, the last figure is for a region in Ohio. Professor Taussig, probably the foremost tariff expert in the United States, says that "Under such circumstances the investigation of the tariff board supplies ammunition for either party, but will not enable either to route the other."

From a political point of view, perhaps President Taft did well to veto the bill. He is already too thoroughly discredited with the progressive element in the country to regain their confidence by a single act. On the other hand the veto makes him stronger with his friends—those who have a pecuniary interest in keeping the tariff rates high.

NOTHING FOR SOMETHING

ACCORDING to a report recently published by Postmaster General Hitchcock, the people of this country were defrauded through the mails, during the fiscal year ending with June, 1912, of $120,000,000. During the preceding year the swindlers got only $70,000,000 for their worthless stocks and bonds, valueless corner lots, unworkable inventions and other swindles. During last year the Postoffice Department's inspectors arrested 1,063 of the grafters; 452 of them have been convicted and sentenced. 571 are awaiting trial or sentence. Most of the men who sell nothing for something by the mail order system had their offices located in New York City.

The operations of confidence men who operate through the postoffice affect every part of the country. A case of mistaken "investment" has recently been brought to the attention of the secretary of the local Associated Charities. A family in this city bought ten acres of land near Egg Harbor, N. J., on the installment plan. The advertisement that led to the purchase stated that the land "could be used profitably in raising small fruits for the New York market." Five hundred dollars were paid by installment. The family have been unable to make further payments. They are now inquiring if anything is coming to them for their $500. Whether the ten acres in question is more suited to growing of small fruits, seaweed, Russian thistles or cactus, nobody knows; at any rate, nobody in the vicinity of Colorado Springs, including the purchaser.

The fact that a few years ago Collier's Weekly gave away a full-sized New Jersey lot on the Atlantic ocean to every person who subscribed to that magazine for one year indicates something of the value of certain New Jersey real estate. However, Collier's did not misrepresent the value of the realty in question.

Shining marks always have been a never-dying source of profit for mining sharks. The two species, the prospector and the prey, are not new. Speaking of the redundancy of capital at the end of the seventeenth century, Lord Macaulay said: "The natural effect of this state of things was that a crowd of projectors, ingenious and absurd, honest and knavish, employed themselves in devising new schemes for the employment of redundant capital. . . . A mania of which the symptoms were essentially the same with those of the mania of 1720, of the mania of 1825, of the mania of 1845, seized the public mind. An impatience to be rich, a contempt for the slow but sure gains which are the proper reward of industry, patience, and thrift, spread through society. . . . It was much easier and much more lucrative to put forth a lying prospectus announcing a new stock, to persuade ignorant people that the dividends could not fall short of 20 per cent, and to part with 5,000 pounds of the imaginary wealth for the thousand solid guineas, than to load a ship with a well chosen crew for Virginia or the Levant."

At the time of the South Sea Bubble in 1720 an unusually preposterous lot of companies were launched. Among them these: "To Make Salt Water Fresh; for Making Oil From Sunflower Seeds; for Extracting of Silver From Lead; for Importing a Number of Large Jack Asses From Spain; for a Wheel of Perpetual Motion and "for an undertaking which shall, in due time, be revealed." In referring to the last named undertaking, Walter Bagehot says in his "Lombard Street": "Each subscriber was to pay down two guineas and hereafter to receive a share of one hundred with a disclosure of the object; and so tempting was the offer that 1,000 of these subscriptions were paid the same morning, with which the projector went off in the afternoon." It seems impossible that people could be found who are so easily separated from their money.

Undoubtedly, millions of dollars have been taken annually since the time of the South Sea Bubble by means of schemes and propositions just as ridiculous as those named. The postoffice officials cannot be too active in suppressing the fraudulent use of the mails. In addition the various states should require the registration of promoters and the filing of a prospectus extensive enough to tell whether the project is fraudulent or not. Above all the people should be warned that the promise of large profits in distant enterprises is in itself a reason for suspicion. The buyer should beware.

OPEN PARLIAMENT

THE SCHOOL QUESTION

To the Editor of The Gazette:
Nothing, I imagine, so helps an editor and gives him a chance as to ask pertinent questions on important matters. You ask editorially, (8th inst.): "How can anyone expect to secure educated, efficient, experienced teachers at rates such as the following?"

Now I ask, how can we expect to get an effective, efficient school system owned, conducted and managed by the state? That education is not only essential but indispensable in a republic no one would question. But is education by the state any part of the business of the state? Is not a general state educational system as much out of place as a state religious system? I know the usual answer, but look at it intelligently and dispassionately. I believe that the public school education—or the lack of any other one cause for the present class of our citizenship which makes possible existing conditions.

Again you say: "The public schools in the north, as in the south, have failed to educate the people thoroughly and efficiently." This is my contention, and it is a terrible indictment, is it not, against the system? It is not because of low salaries in the north, complained of (I think unjustly) in the forefront of your article, as prevailing in the south. In my state the taxes for schools exceed all taxes for state and county purposes combined, and so it is believed true in other states. Yet, as you say, it is notorious that there is no efficient education; hence no preparation of its pupils, who form the mass of our citizenship, to meet the responsibility of citizens. Your last admission—which is undoubtedly yet unfortunately true—would seem to solve the first question.

The fact is we have gone mad on this subject. A universal state educational system, so far from promoting republican institutions, tends to destroy them; individuality of thought and action is indispensable in this form of government. The public schools mould the people in one mould. All the books, even, are written and printed by one trust. If a genuine state school system can be made, it is a success; socialism—the dream of some honest, misguided men—should succeed also in all pursuits.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOL COURSE

To the Editor of The Gazette:
Surely every thoughtful person who read Mr. Garstin's letter in The Gazette, Aug. 8, must be interested in the very intelligent opinions expressed, and perhaps has suggestions equally practical. Why this apparent apathy towards the important question? Is it an indication that the school system is so nearly perfect that it cannot be improved?

To the writer and to many engaged in the work the tremendous waste and loss is perfectly evident and we believe that the training which the public owes to future citizens could be given in less than twelve years. Witness the absurdity, for instance, of an individual giving seven years to the technique of reading, writing and spelling, eight to writing and spelling, as the course is now arranged. Should not five years be time enough for fundamentals, the learning to use and sharpen the tools with which the real educational structure is fashioned?

If a pupil knew he could finish his course in eight or nine years and use those tools during the last three or four in carving an entrance to real life, would it be necessary to hold him an unwilling attendant or lose him altogether after he leaves the fifth grade?

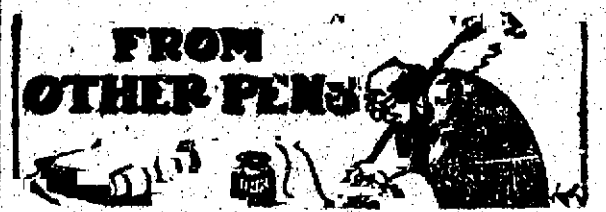

Let us have for greatest good for the greatest number.

COATLESS CHURCH SERVICES.

From the Washington Star.

A Washington preacher last night struck a new note in church-going comfort when he urged his male hearers to take off their coats during the services. While this unquestionably defies the conventions in a radical manner, it may possibly be considered as a concession to climate for the sake of getting men to attend church. In most walks of life nowadays there is a larger degree of freedom in the matter of men's costumes, especially in summer time. A few years ago an effort was made to introduce the style of going without coats altogether in hot weather, but most men found this an inconvenience owing to the lack of pockets, to which they have always been accustomed. So the compromise has gradually become popular of taking the coat off whenever the temperature warrants.

The "go-to-meetin'" costume of mankind is usually heavy, and in summer time is hot and hard to endure. Sunday morning the church-going citizen garbs himself in starched vest and frock coat, a combination about as ill-suited to the season as the opera house. In this he sits in church and suffers, depending for physical salvation upon a palm-leaf fan, the operation of which usually causes the itching of his cuff. Meanwhile his womankind are comparatively cool in light clothes. At all events, if they are not cool they are giving a most excellent imitation, and the philosophical man is likely to ponder on the injustice of fashion and rule that require him to swelter while his sister or his wife sits in relative ease in garments suited to the season.

Perhaps the coatless church will come into vogue generally. This idea is worthy of serious consideration as a means of making places of worship more attractive, at least less repellent, to the very class whom it is the ambition of every preacher to bring within the range of his influence. If a man can be assured that he will be physically as comfortable in a church pew as he is on his own front porch in summer time he is more apt to accept the invitation to listen to a good sermon, too much.

A DYING ART.

From the New York Tribune.

On the plea that business was going to the dogs, a pie-maker in Chicago has succeeded in stopping a proposed increase in his company's tax assessment. "Pie has decreased in popularity with the masses," he told the tax board. "Its place is being taken by fruit, ice cream and salads." It is a lamentable confession, and one which on purely sentimental grounds will cause grief in every corner of the land. Pie, the great American food, formerly an unpopularity and its place taken by fruit, ice cream and salads, and foreign-born salads—the thought is fraught with sadness. And yet, was it not inevitable?

The pie making of old, on which basis pie gained its venerated hold on the American stomach and the American imagination, was an art. That art is commercialized pie making has become a thing of machinery and unutilized labor. Real pie, save in a few sacred shrines, is only a memory. Its place has been usurped and its name stolen by a standardized thing of commerce bearing as much resemblance to potato salad as to genuine pie. Compare that which at present is known as mince pie to the mince pie of 20 or 30 years ago—compounded of beef and all manner of dainty fruits and sugar and spices, with elder and brandy added in a proportion born of true genius; the whole baked with loving care until the crisp crusts turned a delicate brown; and the apple pie—made of firm fruit, somewhat tart, which when subjected to the oven's processes resolved into a pungent interior puffing the crust into curious crinkly protuberances as appealing to the imagination as to the palate. And the custard pie—made of real eggs and cream, with a crust which was not a mass of gelatinous paste, and the pumpkin—not pumpkin-pie, and the huckleberry pie, and the cherry pie and all the other creations, at once sublime and romantic, which in season could be found in flocks on the country shelves, their like exists not in the unfortunate denizens of towns and cities in this generation. His pie came from the pie trust, and his stomach revolts thereat. Here, and there, jealously guarded, handed down from generation to generation, the art of pie making still exists pure and uncommercialized. In such happy haunts pie has not lost its popularity and its place can be taken by nothing except more pie.

Two Ways of Traveling

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Prepare to live by all means, but for Heaven's sake do not forget to live," Arnold Bennett.

Once upon a time I was driven through a very beautiful country in a splendid motor car. All along the way were lovely roadside flowers which I longed to gather, and wonderful vistas that I wanted to have time to fix upon "that inward eye." But my hostesses were not the kind of people to stop and gather roadside flowers or look long at beautiful vistas. They were "get there" people, and so we whirled along to the journey's end, and when we reached it they heaved sighs of content as if they had just been to a picnic.

Of which seemed very strange to me, for theoretically we had come for the pleasure of the journey.

Once again I traveled that same road, this time in an unpretentious conveyance drawn by an unpretentious steed. And because this time my host and hostess were the kind of people who knew how to enjoy a journey and not keep their minds only on the journey's end, we stopped and gathered flowers, and drank at a little brook, and passed the time of day with some fellow travelers, and invited our souls before the wonderful vistas that I had only glimpsed before.

Now which journey do you think I enjoyed the most?

Which would you have enjoyed most?

Do you belong to the "get there" folk or to those who think that every moment of the journey should be enjoyed?

And I don't mean only as regards actual traveling, but as regards life itself.

A young girl who had embroidered a beautiful center piece for her mother was complaining because her mother never used the gift. "It's just like all the lovely things mother has," she exclaimed, "she just puts them away to use sometime. I want her to use them now."

There are many men and women like that mother who are always saving their blessings for sometime. Sometime they will use their beautiful things; sometime they will take time to enjoy their children; sometime they will take advantage of all the opportunities for education and enjoyment that surround them; sometime they will be happy.

Ah! my friends, there is no time for happiness half so good as now. Don't dream of a some day when you can be happy, but be happy right now.

"You will never have a better chance for happiness, may I repeat, than you have at present. You may think you will have, but you are mistaken."

So get out and gather flowers along the roadside. Only so will you get the most out of the journey of life.

NO. 1 DR. WILLIAM HAWES

The pioneer in the charitable work of the humane society was Dr. William Hawes, the founder of that society, who was born in London in 1786 and died in that city in 1868. Today every city of any size in the civilized world has its society working along the lines laid down by Dr. Hawes.

On the carriage road, close to the border of the Serpentine, in Hyde Park, London, stands a little building that will recall to all visitors to that city the work that Dr. Hawes carried out for the benefit of humanity. In 1778 the gold medal of the British Humane society bore the head of George III, and in order to show his appreciation of the value of its work he ordered this building to be constructed on the shore of the Serpentine, and had it fully equipped with every appliance necessary to restore life to a person nearly drowned.

Ten years after it was built, the king's son, the Duke of Cumberland, saved the life of a young girl from the Serpentine, and upon him at St. James' Palace, the gold medal was bestowed.

William Hawes was educated at St. Paul's school, London, and served an apprenticeship with a surgeon and chemist. He worked so faithfully and showed such skill that at 23 he was at the head of an establishment in the Strand, with a share in the business and he had a large patronage.

At 37 Dr. Hawes decided upon what should be his life work. He had felt an earnest desire to do something for humanity. He read of an account of a society at Amsterdam that was then six years old, the duties of which was to restore to life those nearly drowned, persons who had been overcome by gasses or who had been buried while in a condition like death.

Full of enthusiasm in his belief that he had found his mission in life, he paid no heed to the opposition he encountered, and the ridicule to which he was subjected.

At his own expense he offered a certain sum of money to any person who would try the means of aid he prescribed upon any person who had remained too long in the water of the Thames, between London and Westminster bridges. Within a year so many persons had been saved that it looked as if Dr. Hawes' private fortune would soon be given away in this service.

People no longer laughed at Hawes, and some of his friends gathered at a cafe in 1774 and founded the "Humane Society" under his direction. On April 4 of that year, Oliver Goldsmith died. Dr. Hawes wrote an account of Goldsmith's death and dedicated it to St. Joshua Reynolds and Edmund Burke, two of Oliver's intimate friends.

In this he called attention to the danger of a medicine then greatly in use and called "Junes' Powders," which he claimed had caused the death of Goldsmith by too excessive doses. This created a renewed interest in the society that was looking into such important matters.

Dr. Hawes was an honorary member of many humane societies in Europe, Asia and America. He was so absorbed in zeal for his favorite work that he left but a small fortune for his wife and children.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

AUGUST 14, 1882
Miss Virginia Donahue, who was connected with the Republic, the predecessor of the Telegraph, left for an eastern visit. Miss Donahue subsequently became Mrs. Gilbert McClure, and through various activities one of the most prominent ladies in the city.

The Colorado Springs Athletic association proposed to hold a track and field meet in the near future at the association grounds on Weber street.

Alderman Brown and Mrs. Brown returned from a visit to Manitou park.

The differences between the Midland management and the telegraphers of the road, which had become so acute as to threaten a strike, were amicably adjusted.

THE HASKIN LETTER

CAMPAIGN FUNDS

II—GROWTH OF POLITICAL EXPENSES

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The campaign funds of the political parties in the United States in the first century of independence were not noted for their size. In the earlier days of the republic money was not used very freely in influencing voters. What could not be done at rallies and barbecues, with an accompaniment of good "flicker," was largely left undone. Leonard Swett declared that it did not cost over $700 to secure the nomination of Abraham Lincoln for the presidency in 1860, and that $100,000 financed the entire campaign in 1864. There was a gradual increase in the size of the war chests of the political parties of the country the next year, 1876, but they were not large enough to arouse much interest in them or for them to leave their impress upon the records of American politics.

When 1876 came the Democratic candidate was Samuel J. Tilden, a born organizer. It always takes money to secure a thorough organization, even when none of it is legitimately used. And the funds for organization were at hand. A conservative writer has estimated that the two parties spent some $800,000, and that the majority of this came from the Democratic war chest. In that campaign, Senator Barnum of Connecticut, was the chairman of the Democratic national committee, and Zachary Chandler of Michigan, was chairman of the Republican national committee. It was the first campaign in the history of the country when political strategy became an exact science.

When the election returns began to come in it appeared that Tilden was elected. Early in the night, Governor Hayes had conceded the election of his opponent. Chairman Chandler had shut up headquarters in New York and gone home, admitting defeat. The New York Times, regarded as the Hayes organ, had sent its early editions to the country with the election of Tilden. But just at this juncture there came to the editor of the Times, the late John C. Reed, a telegram from the chairman of the Democratic national committee, Mr. Barnum, inquiring how Louisiana and several other states, which everybody had conceded to Tilden, had gone. Reed took the cue. He knew there was doubt in the Democratic leader's mind, and that it would not do to abandon claim to victory in the face of it. He called off his early editions conceding the election of Tilden, and substituted others claiming a victory for Hayes. He then hurried up William E. Chandler, secretary of the Republican national committee, and now one of the foremost of the advocates of full publicity for all campaign expenses and contributions, and between them they started the Republican party to claiming the victory that a few hours before they had conceded to the Democrats. It worked, and that telegram did more than all of the Tilden campaign fund to change the result of the election.

Blaine Put Up Biggest Amount
In 1880, both parties had sizable funds and most authorities calculate that the two spent a million dollars. In 1884, Blaine and Cleveland were the opposing candidates, and it has been asserted that Cleveland had a shade the better of Blaine, in the matter of funds. Blaine probably put up more money, personally, than any other candidate in the history of the presidency. His initial subscription was $25,000, and although Senator B. F. Jones and Stephen B. Elkins are credited with having raised a fund of $500,000, there was still a heavy deficit, and Blaine himself put in another $100,000. It is said that his heavy contributions, more than anything else, induced him to write his "Twenty Years in Congress," to recoup his fortune.

The famous dinner in which Jay Gould and others then in bad odor participated, came to be known as the Feast of Belshazzar, and that, coupled with the "Bum, Romanism and Rebellion" remark of the Reverend Mr. Burchard, probably had more to do with the defeat of Blaine than all the money raised against him.

When the returns came in, New York was the pivotal state, and there was a neck and neck race. A contest was threatened, and William C. Whitney promptly raised $50,000 to fight the legal battle. Furthermore, the Democrats secured the legal services of Roscoe Conkling in preparation for the promised contest. But Blaine, afterward declaring that he would have made the contest but for fear that it would precipitate another Civil war, conceded the state to Cleveland. It is in view of that threatened contest that a provision of the law of 1910 takes on a peculiar interest. This provision says that nothing in the law shall be construed as limiting or affecting the right of any person to spend money for proper legal expenses in maintaining or contesting the results of any election.

Harrison Side Led in 1888
When the campaign of 1888 came around it was found that both war chests were well filled, with the honors on the side of the Harrison end of the fight. It is asserted that John W. Wadsworth and three other rich men of Pennsylvania raised $400,000, and that large funds were raised in other states, notably in New York. It was in this campaign that Matthew Stanley Quay coined his celebrated phrase, "trying the queen's taste." It was in this campaign also that the celebrated letter attributed to General Dudley, advising the Republican workers in Indiana to steer the Democrats up against the "bar" of the Republican managers and to march the voters to the polls in blocks of five, each worker being responsible for his five voters. The letter was denied as a forgery, but it is asserted that a whole trunkful of small bills was delivered in Cincinnati to the Republican leaders of Indiana.

In 1892, William C. Whitney captured the Cleveland fight, and there was no lack of funds on that side. On the Republican side also much money was spent, but nothing could turn the tide that had set away from the Republicans after the passage of the McKinley tariff. After the fight was over, Cornelius N. Bliss, who had charge of the Republican campaign finances, went one day to the offices of the American Protective Tariff league. He found $5,000 in its treasury and is said to have exclaimed that it was the only solvent thing in the Republican party at that time.

1896 Fund a Record Breaker
About the campaign of 1896 there is wide divergence of opinion, except that the Republicans had what was probably the largest campaign fund in the history of politics. Bourke Cockran once declared that Mr. Hanna had $15,000,000 to spend. Another writer, who knew Mark Hanna rather intimately, declared he had it on good authority that his fund totaled $8,000,000, and that the largest individual contributor was an insurance company which planked down $200,000 for the cause of Mr. McKinley. One railroad put up $100,000. It is asserted by another authority that in October, when the drift seemed to be toward Mr. Bryan, certain corporations were assessed one-fourth of one per cent on their capital stock with which to stem the tide. The Republican printing bill of that year is estimated at $1,000,000, with a postage bill of half that amount. The statement also has been made that Mr. Hanna contributed more than $1,000,000 to the Palmer and Buckner campaign.

On the Democratic side of that campaign there were some big contributions from the owners of silver mines. And yet it is said that if the people had not responded liberally to the call of Chairman Jones for dollar subscriptions, the committee must have gone bankrupt.

In 1896 the Republicans again had plenty of funds, while the Democrats had an almost empty treasury. In 1904 it was thought at the outset that Parker would get the bulk of the big contributions, but it did not work out that way.

Two Estimates of 1904 Amount
Mr. Cortelyou has stated that the Republican fund in 1904 was $1,900,000, and puts it as about half as large as the funds which were behind Cleveland in 1892 and McKinley in 1896. He recently testified before a senate committee that he never knew that the insurance companies had contributed to the fund of that year until the fact was brought out in the New York insurance investigation. While he places

CHILDREN NEED EXTRA CARE IN HOT WEATHER

Summer Heat Dangerous to Little Ones If Bowels Are Neglected.

The mother cannot do better for her children than to train them, from infancy, to regularity of the bowels. Chronic constipation in later life can be avoided if the child learns early the need for a daily evacuation of the poisonous stomach waste.

There will, of course, be times when the little one will become constipated and bilious. In hot weather, especially, immediate attention is necessary, as much serious illness results from inactive bowels. Suffering, indigestion, headache, and similar drastic irritants are harsh and violent and only bring temporary relief while disturbing the whole system. A gentle, pleasant bowel stimulant like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is far preferable. Syrup Pepsin contains no narcotic drug, being composed of simple laxative herbs combined with pepsin, and acts gently in a natural manner on the stomach, bowels and liver. By thoroughly cleansing the bowels and removing the foreign matter that irritates and inflames the tissue, it will quickly check the summer diarrhoea that is so weakening in its effect.

NERVE REACTION GREATER IN HIGHER ALTITUDES

Those living in high altitudes are more nervous than those who live nearer sea level, according to the results of a series of experiments that have been conducted on the summit of Pikes Peak by Prof. J. V. Breilweiser, head of the department of psychology of Colorado college. The experiments were made on members of the advanced class in psychology.

The tests showed that the nerve reaction time is faster on the summit of Pikes Peak; that associations are made more rapidly and with less accuracy, and that nerves of the body are strung to their utmost pitch.

The result of the researches will be printed in an article to appear in the J. A. Bergstrom memorial which will be published this winter by the University of Illinois.

Baby's Voice

Every woman's heart responds to the charm and sweetness of a baby's voice, because nature intended her for motherhood. But even the loving nature of a mother shrinks from the ordeal because such a time is usually a period of suffering and danger. Women who use Mother's Friend are saved much discomfort and suffering, and their systems, being thoroughly prepared by this great remedy, are in a healthy condition to meet the time with the least possible suffering and danger. Mother's Friend is recommended only for the relief and comfort of expectant mothers; it is in no sense a remedy for various ills, but its many years of success, and the thousands of endorsements received from women who have used it are a guarantee of the benefit to be derived from its use. This remedy does not accomplish wonders but simply assists nature to perfect its work. Mother's Friend allays nausea, prevents caking of the breasts, and in every way contributes to strong, healthy motherhood. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Only Two Parties Allowed to Participate in Sept. Primary

Only two parties, the Republican and Democratic, may participate in the September primaries, according to Attorney General Ben Griffith, who has issued the following statement:

Griffith's Statement.

There has been considerable confusion with reference to the primary election law, particularly as to who is entitled to vote at the primaries and as to the manner of voting.

Under the primary election law only two parties are entitled to participate therein and choose their candidates by primary election, the Republican party and the Democratic party, since section 2 of the act provides that only those parties whose candidate for governor received 10 per cent. of the total vote at the preceding general election shall participate in the primary.

There will, therefore, be made up for this primary election one ballot which will be the Republican party ballot, and also one ballot which will be the Democratic party ballot. Candidates for the different offices on these ballots will be placed there either by assembly designation or by petition duly filed with the proper officer. August 10 was the last day for filing these petitions.

To vote at this primary election, to be held September 10, it will be necessary to register in accordance with the provisions of chapter 127 of the Session Laws of 1911. The first 33 sections of this law pertaining to registration in cities of over 5,000 inhabitants, while section 39 provides for registration in all other election precincts in the state.

Must Be Registered.

Each person who expects to vote at the September primaries should see that he is properly registered as provided by law.

When a qualified elector, duly registered, presents himself to vote at the primaries, he will be given a Republican party ticket and a Democratic party ticket. He will then retire to the voting booth and select one or the other of these tickets and vote for the candidate on the same. He can not vote on both tickets. The ticket that he has voted will be by him duly deposited in the ballot box. The ticket which he does not vote he will deposit before leaving the polling place, in a separate ballot box, known as the "blank ballot box."

If the voter is dissatisfied with the names of those on the ticket which he desires to vote, he may vote on said ticket for any other person who is a member of the political party represented by the ticket which he votes, by writing the name of the person he desires to vote for in the blank space immediately following the printed name of candidates.

If a voter is challenged, he is required to make oath or affirm, as follows:

"I do hereby solemnly swear (or affirm) that I am a qualified voter that I am a member of and affiliated with one of the political parties represented by ballot at this primary election, and that I will at this election vote only under the ballot and only for the candidates of the political party of which I am a member and with which I am affiliated."

Only Test Required.

The voter is not required to disclose which ticket he votes for, but merely has to make oath or affirm as above set out; and this is the only test set forth in the primary law as to his right to vote.

Presidential electors are not chosen at primary election, and will, therefore, not be voted upon at that time. These electors are chosen to go on the ballots at the general election either by assembly designation or by petition, which may be filed not less than 60 days before the fall election.

The direct primary is conducted under all of the formalities of the general election, and the same penalties for illegal voting, etc., apply.

As already stated, only the Republican and the Democratic parties may participate in the September primaries. All other candidates of other parties, and independent candidates may be placed upon the fall election ballot by certificates of nomination signed by a certain number of voters, as required by law. These certificates of nomination for all independent candidates, or parties other than the Republican and Democratic parties, can be filed not less than 20 days nor more than 60 days before the general fall election, with reference to state and national offices; with reference to county offices, they can be filed not less than 15 days nor more than 60 days before the general election.

At the Opera house today, matinee and night and running the entire week, James Hawley and Garrick Players will be seen in the great rural drama, "Out of the Fold."

"Out of the Fold" is being presented this week by one of the best stock organizations in the west. A production complete in every detail.

A pretty love story and clean, wholesome comedy.

The greatest of musical comedies will be offered next week, "Time, Place and Girl."

Johnny Young, seen here this spring with "The Pink Lady" was seen here in "Time, Place and the Girl" three seasons ago.

Jimmy Hawley will be seen in Young's part, that of Johnny Hicks, in "Time, Place and the Girl."

Miss Knorr will be seen in the role of Molly next week.

A professional chorus of six girls will be seen next week, most of them having worked in this piece before in the east.

"Thursday Always Was My Jonyer Day," "Don't You Tell I Told You," "Lonesome," "Blow the Smoke Away," "Waiting Moon," etc., are to be sung next week.

"Time, Place and the Girl" seats are now selling.

SOUVENIR MATINEE TOMORROW AT THE BURNS THEATER

Every man, woman and child who attends the matinee performance at the Burns theater tomorrow, Thursday, will be presented with a photograph of Malcolm Duncan, the popular leading man at the playhouse beautiful.

The first three performances of this week, "A Gilded Fool," has been witnessed by more people than for any similar three days of any week since The Burns summer season was inaugurated, and the advance sale of seats for the remainder of the week practically assures capacity houses for every performance.

Not only is Mr. Duncan at his best in the Nat Goodwin comedy, but every member of the company is giving such support as marks this the triumphant week of the season, and it will long be remembered by those who study the presentation of a play from every angle.

Patrons who are sending flowers to members of the company are requested to please leave the same at the theater office, and these will be sent over the footlights at the proper time and which is not always the case when such tokens are given to the ushers direct for delivery.

Telephone reservation of seats may be made by calling Main 299, yet seat reservations are only held up to within a half-hour of curtain time.

NOTES FROM THE BURNS

Our capacity is being tested. This is certainly "red-letter" week. Two great cards: Malcolm Duncan and "A Gilded Fool."

You should hear Bert E. Jones render his xylophone solo.

"Scenes from Erinna," by the orchestra this week is winning encores. Tomorrow is tag-day for the Bethel hospital. Remember and aid this worthy cause.

Would you know the sequel to "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway"? Then see "The Talk of New York" next week.

"When a Fellow's on the Level With a Girl That's on the Square," is sure to be whistled by every whistling boy in town next week.

"Poppo," a Japanese romance in melody is another selection that is giving unlimited delight to our patrons this week.

Prof. Wm. J. Fink renders a violin solo this week that brings great joy to lovers of the best music. This week's orchestral numbers are a feature.

Those who know are taking no chances in being disappointed in witnessing "The Talk of New York," hence, hundreds of seat reservations for next week's attraction.

There are just three times as many songs in "The Talk of New York" as there are in "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway"—and every song is a sure hit success.

"A TRAITOR'S FATE," AN "IMP" MASTERPIECE AT THE MAJESTIC

Mildred has two lovers, Herbert and Will. Herbert is the favored lover, but Will is determined he shall never marry her. The day before the wedding Will sends her a note, asking her to see him for the last time, as he is leaving the country forever.

Mildred's tender heart urges her to yield to his request, and she meets him. After wishing her all happiness in her new life, he persuades her to allow him to drive her home. Then comes a wild ride. Mildred faints, and Will, seeing a cabin in the woods, carries her to it and endeavors to revive her. She recovers from the swoon and begs Will to take her home; he refuses. He tries to embrace her; she pushes him away, and, falling to the floor, her hand accidentally touches a hatchet. She grasps the weapon and warns the desperate man to keep off. She escapes from the cabin, with Will in pursuit. He overtakes her and seizes the deadly weapon, when Herbert arrives. He having seen the empty buggy, is alarmed and goes in search of his sweetheart. Will escapes in the woods, but is finally captured, and the unworthy friend meets the fate he so richly deserved. Then, of course, there's the Animated Weekly; it's always a feature, and it sure is a winner this week. It's full of interest—no question about it—and then, there's "The Call of the West," and we who know its call always answer. And then—but what's the use. There's two more, of course, and it goes without saying that George's music is always the best.

Judge and Mrs. Joseph Oberfelder of Sidney, Neb., are spending a few days at the Antlers hotel. Judge Oberfelder is United States commissioner for the district of Nebraska.

"SAILOR TOM" SHARKEY IS AFTER HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—"Sailor" Tom Sharkey, once a leading heavyweight pugilist, with a record of standing 24 rounds before Jim Jeffries, of the famous then champion one of the hardest battles of his career, announced himself tonight as a contender for the world's heavyweight championship of the world.

Sharkey looks to gain the distinction after a long period of retirement by taking the measure of Tommy Burns, whose defeat by Jack Johnson gave the latter the world's title.

Sharkey says he has been led to believe that Burns wants a return match.

with Johnson, and expressed his own willingness to arrange a match with Burns, "under any fair conditions the latter may name." He expressed confidence that if he takes "a course in strict training" he can reenter the ring and defeat Burns.

The Patricia's victory today put the Canadian boat in the lead with two victories to her credit. The American boat won the initial race last Saturday. There will be five heats.

Great excitement was caused during the first race of the afternoon when the motor boat "Kitty Hawk," owned by H. H. Timkin of Detroit, sank. Hel occupants, Freeman Monroe, driver, and Fred Josephs, mechanic, were reached. The boat was a length and a half from shore. A few minutes before the accident she had set a record for the carnival by negotiating five miles in eight minutes. This was the second boat to sink at the carnival. The Baby Reliance, a motor boat, went down yesterday. Only one motor boat race was finished today, the Chicago, owned by E. J. Richards of Chicago, winning the 25-foot event of 15 miles in 24:15.

Monroe said tonight that his boat caught fire, due probably to some of the ignition wires becoming short circuited. The entire bow was in flames when he first noticed the fire, Monroe said. He warned his mechanic, and they both jumped.

The former champions tried the come-back stunt, and performed it successfully last week. Although Tommy Burns, who lost the title to Johnson, won his fight by a knockout, his victory did not improve the sporting public's opinion of him. As Attell drew with Harley, Tommy Murphy.

Burns' opponent was an unknown, Billy Ricketts, while Attell fought a fighter with an international reputation. According to the reports of the Burns-Ricketts battle, the former and things very much his own way, and could have scored a knockout whenever he pleased. He allowed the un-

STARS ARE VEGETARIANS

Both the Kohlenmaier brothers of Finland are vegetarians. The winner of the two running races at the Olympic games in Sweden is a bricklayer by trade, while the other one is a clerk. Both have a perfect stride for long distance events of the short-step variety.

The Philites have helped the Giants in more ways than one. They have been easy for the Poloists to beat and helpful in keeping the Cubs and Pirates at a respectful distance.
